

Zameer Shah

Consultant Orthopaedic & Trauma Surgeon
London

Based in London, Mr Zameer Shah is a Fellowship-trained Consultant Orthopaedic Surgeon specialising in the treatment of hip and knee conditions. With a reputation for excellence, his areas of expertise include joint replacement surgery, arthroscopic knee surgery and the management of sports injuries.

Mr Zameer Shah qualified in medicine from Kings College London in 1997 and undertook his surgical training at leading institutions in Cambridge, Oxford and London. During his training, he was a Research Fellow at the Royal National Orthopaedic Hospital in Stanmore where he undertook pioneering work in the use of stem cells.

On completion of his training, Mr Shah was awarded a prestigious international Fellowship at the Insall Scott Institute and Hospital for Special Surgery in New York USA. He then went on to complete a further Fellowship at Guy's Hospital in London, giving him specialist expertise in all aspects of hip and knee surgery.

In parallel with his clinical training, Mr Shah completed a MBA at Imperial College London and a Diploma in Sports Medicine from the Royal College of Surgeons. This work, which is ongoing, focussed on measuring and improving healthcare performance and quality and led to him being recognised as one of the Next General Capital Leaders by the London Leadership Academy.

Mr Shah was appointed Consultant Orthopaedic Surgeon to Guy's and St Thomas' Hospitals in 2012. Innovative and passionate about the use of new advances, he has led the development of the enhanced recovery programme at Guy's, which has been recognised nationally, and is involved in national treatment trials and programmes.

A Senior Clinical Lecturer at Kings College London, Mr Shah plays an active role in medical education and teaching. He also works with the Royal College of Surgeons to advance surgical practice worldwide through their International Surgical Training Programme.
