Dr Richard Anderson is an expert cardiologist with many years of experience in treating cardiac conditions. He specialises in an array of cardiac conditions including: hypertension, angina, atrial fibrillations and general cardiac conditions. He consults privately at various locations around Cardiff.

Dr Richard Anderson is a highly skilled consultant interventional cardiologist and heart specialist at the Nuffield Health Cardiff and Vale Hospitals and Spire Cardiff Hospital. He specialises in an array of cardiac conditions including, hypertension, angina, atrial fibrillations and general cardiac conditions. Mr Anderson provides treatment both on the NHS and privately.

Mr Anderson qualified for his initial medical qualification at the Charing Cross and Westminster Medical School in 1994 where he obtained degrees in medicine and pharmacology. After working in London and Surrey, Mr Anderson returned to Wales where he was appointed Registrar trainee.

He undertook specialist training in Newcastle, Toulouse and Southampton in coronary angioplasty and coronary angiography. As a result of his extensive training in these areas, Mr Anderson is highly practised in performing these procedures from the wrist, allowing same day discharge for the majority of his patients. Not soon after, Mr Anderson went on to complete a fellowship with the Royal College of Physicians, allowing him to practice as a senior cardiac surgeon.
