A highly experienced orthopaedic and sports medicine consultant with a long history of working with elite sportsmen and women, Dr Ken Kennedy offers expert treatment and advice to patients from all walks of life and sports enthusiasts of all abilities. He is based at 51 Harley Street.

Dr Ken Kennedy undertook his medical training at Queen's University in Belfast. He then moved to London where he gained experience at Guys, St. Stephens and St. Mary Abbots hospitals. Subsequently he was appointed as Medical Director of Rehabilitation at the Royal Star and Garter Hospital in Roehampton.

For more than three decades, Dr Kennedy practised at 30 Harley Street, where he created a 'one stop shop' enabling patients to receive consultation, investigation and treatment all at the same clinic. In 2013, the renowned 30 Harley Street clinic relocated to The London Sports Injury Clinic at 108 Harley Street.

Now practicing at 51 Harley Street, Dr Kennedy welcomes all patients with injuries and musculoskeletal conditions. He also offers advice to sports enthusiasts of all abilities, enabling them to improve their technique and enhance their performance.
