Mr Andrew Goldberg is an internationally renowned consultant orthopaedic surgeon. An expert in foot and ankle surgery, he pioneers a large research programme into innovative treatments and runs one of the largest private foot and ankle services in the UK. Mr Goldberg leads on the National Joint Registry for ankle replacements and performs the procedure at a rate of more than 10 times that of the average surgeon in the UK.

Mr Andrew (Andy) Goldberg is an internationally renowned expert who specialises solely in foot and ankle conditions and his practice is entirely focused on listening to patients' needs. He believes strongly in outcome-based treatments and is known for his non-interventional approach and helpful neutral opinions. He will only recommend surgery when he believes it is in your best interest and will benefit you.

By working in a multidisciplinary setting alongside podiatrists, physiotherapists, pilates instructors and orthotists, Mr Goldberg helps avoid surgery on more than 85% of patients he sees.

If you have suffered a nasty injury or are suffering from pain in your foot or ankle, Mr Goldberg can provide you with his expert opinion to help advise you on the best treatment options.

Mr Andrew Goldberg obtained his degree from St Mary's Hospital Medical School in 1994 and carried out further specialist training in trauma and orthopaedics with a specialist fellowship in complex foot and ankle disorders in London.

He was appointed Consultant Orthopaedic Surgeon in 2009 in Northampton, Honorary Consultant at the Royal National Orthopaedic Hospital NHS Trust in Stanmore, and Honorary Clinical Senior Lecturer at University College London and Royal National Orthopaedic Hospital.

In 2011, Mr Andrew Goldberg was awarded an OBE for his services to medicine in the Queen's New Year's Honours List.
