Based at The London General Practice in Harley Street, Dr Eleanor Beecraft is an experienced private GP with a particular interest and expertise in women's health.

Dr Eleanor Beecraft is a private GP at The London General Practice in Harley Street. With wide experience in all aspects of general practice and women's health in particular, she provides a range of personalised health services for UK-based and international patients including medical consultations, house calls and emergency visits and health screening.

Dr Eleanor Beecraft graduated from the University of Southampton in 2006, going on to work in a variety of hospital specialties in the South West of England. On completion of her GP training in Bath in 2011, she became a Partner at a large NHS practice in London. Dr Beecraft joined The London General Practice in 2018.

Dr Beecraft is a member of the Royal College of General Practitioners. Her interest in women's health has also led her to achieve a diploma from the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists and from the Faculty of Sexual and Reproductive Health. In addition to providing support, medical treatments and evidence-based advice for the full range of women's health issues, she is certified to fit contraceptive devices.

Highly experienced in all aspects of general practice, Dr Beecraft enjoys the wide diversity that the discipline brings. She values highly, and is committed to, a holistic approach and continuity of care.

Dr Beecraft has a particular interest in women's health offering services for women of all ages and covering issues such as menstrual cycle problems, teenage acne, contraception, sexual health, pregnancy and childbirth, and menopause.
