Dr Paul Ettlinger is one of London's most respected and well established private doctors and is the founder of The London General Practice in Harley Street.

Committed to providing a personal service with a continuity of care, he has a particular interest in occupational health, preventative medicine and men's health.

Dr Paul Ettlinger is a private GP at The London General Practice in Harley Street, a clinic that he founded to provide comprehensive, personal care for UK-based and international patients, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. He has a particular interest in preventative medicine, men's health and occupational health and provides occupational health services to a number of companies and their employees.

Dr Paul Ettlinger qualified in medicine from the University of Southampton in 1981. He holds a Postgraduate Diploma in Obstetrics and Gynaecology and in Occupational Health.

From 1985 until 1991, Dr Ettlinger was the Principal in a NHS General Practice operated by the Family Health Service Authority for Kensington, Chelsea and Westminster. He has also lectured at St Mary's Hospital Medical School and worked as an Assistant to the Professor of Surgery at the Westminster Teaching Hospital.

A firm believer that general practice should provide a personal service and continuity of care, Dr Ettlinger established The London General Practice in the heart of London's medical district serving families, the entertainment industry, multinational companies and prestigious London hotels. His work in general practice was recently recognised when he was admitted as a Fellow of The Royal College of General Practitioners.

Based at 114a Harley Street, The London General Practice offers a comprehensive range of health services for UK-based and international patients including 24/7 private GP services, health screening, health programmes for men, women, wellbeing and 50+, occupational health services and CAA aviation medicals.
