Christopher Wilson is one of the UK's top consultant orthopaedic surgeons. In addition to his busy and varied NHS work at University of Wales NHS Trust, he offers private knee surgery at the Cardiff Bay Clinic, South Wales and The Vale Hospital, Vale of Glamorgan.

Chris Wilson is a highly experienced orthopaedic surgeon specialising in surgery of the lower limb, sports related injuries and reconstructive surgery following trauma. He has a particular expertise in knee surgery.

Mr Wilson has been a Consultant Trauma and Orthopaedic Surgeon at University of Wales NHS Trust since 1996. At the unit, which is one of the busiest in the UK, he is responsible for the supervision and training of specialist orthopaedic trainees and visiting trainees from overseas. He spends one day a week in theatre conducting trauma operations, normally emergencies, and a further day every week performing more routine reconstructive surgery, specifically of knee surgery. The remainder of his week is spent in out-patient clinics, in carrying-out training and teaching commitments and participating in an on-call rota for emergency work.

Most of Mr Wilson's routine operating timetable involves surgery of the major lower limb joints, with a large number of joint replacements, particularly in the more complicated cases such as those involving rheumatoid arthritis.
