Based in Plymouth, Mr Tim Hookway is an experienced Consultant Obstetrician and Gynaecologist with a special interest and expertise in laparoscopic (keyhole) surgery, particularly in the management of pelvic pain and endometriosis. Offering a tailored and personalised approach he also provides investigation and treatment for menstrual disorders and abnormal bleeding.

Mr Tim Hookway is Consultant Obstetrician and Gynaecologist at Plymouth Hospitals NHS Trust. Skilled in the latest minimally invasive investigative and surgical techniques, he provides private treatment for a range of gynaecological problems including pelvic pain, endometriosis, heavy periods, painful periods, abnormal bleeding and hormonal problems at Nuffield Health Plymouth Hospital.

Mr Tim Hookway graduated in medicine from Imperial College London in 2007. He undertook his gynaecology training in London, before moving to Wessex to complete advanced training in complex laparoscopic (keyhole) surgery at hospitals in Winchester and Southampton.

Mr Hookway was appointed Consultant Obstetrician and Gynaecologist at Plymouth Hospitals NHS Trust in 2017 where, in addition to general obstetrics and gynaecology support, he is in the process of establishing a specialist Endometriosis Centre at Derriford Hospital. With a private practice based at Nuffield Health Plymouth, he treats most benign gynaecological conditions and has a special interest in laparoscopic and hysteroscopic surgery.

Committed to a personalised approach, Mr Hookway offers individually tailored treatment and advice designed to meet each woman's needs, wishes and circumstances.
