Based at the Portland Hospital in London's Harley Street District, Miss Elaine Scott is an experienced Consultant Obstetrician and Gynaecologist offering expert, individualised care relating to all aspects of pregnancy and birth (both normal and higher risk). Her practice also covers a range of gynaecological problems such as menstrual disorders, miscarriage, contraception, HRT and the menopause.

Miss Scott qualified as a doctor at University College Hospital in London. Her subsequent specialist training in Obstetrics and Gynaecology included positions at other leading teaching hospitals including the Chelsea and Westminster, St Mary's and Queen Charlotte's hospitals in London, the John Radcliffe Hospital in Oxford and Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge. She was awarded an MD by the University of London for her research work into the onset of labour at term and the physiology of preterm labour.

Miss Scott was a Consultant at the Royal Free NHS Trust from 2000 until 2017. Undertaking senior leadership roles including Lead Obstetrician, Lead for the labour ward and Lead for maternity risk management, she was responsible for the development of a new state-of-the-art labour ward with home-from-home facilities and a midwifery-led unit. She also established the Trust's first specialist joint renal/obstetric clinic designed to care for women with transplants and renal problems.

During her time at the Royal Free, Miss Scott played an active role in teaching undergraduate and postgraduate doctors. She was College Tutor for the Royal College of Gynaecologists (RCOG) for four years and was awarded Fellowship to the RCOG in 2006.

Miss Scott has been in full time private practice since 2017. Based at the Portland Hospital, her aim is to provide high quality individualised obstetric and gynaecological care for all patients.
