

David Cumming

Consultant Orthopaedic Spinal Surgeon
London

Based at Schoen Clinic London, Mr David Cumming is a fellowship-trained orthopaedic spinal surgeon offering expert treatment for adult conditions affecting the cervical, thoracic and lumbar spinal regions, including disc prolapse, back pain, cervical and lumbar stenosis, spondylolisthesis, scoliosis, spinal trauma, tumour and infection.

Mr David Cumming graduated in medicine from Glasgow University in 1999. His specialist orthopaedic training in the East of England included three years of spinal surgery. He then extended his expertise and surgical skills on a Spinal Fellowship at The Royal Devon & Exeter Hospital.

Mr Cumming was appointed as a Consultant Spinal Surgeon at Ipswich Hospital, East Suffolk & North Essex NHS Trust in 2011. He was Clinical Lead for spinal and musculoskeletal services in Ipswich for five years, developing the service into one of the UK's leading orthopaedic hub spinal centres.

As well as his busy clinical practice, Mr Cumming plays an important role in the management and political aspects of musculoskeletal services and spinal surgery. He has worked with NHS England to develop best practice in spinal surgery nationwide and is Chair for the Spinal Services Clinical Reference Group for NHS England. He is also Chair of the East of England Regional Spinal Network and President-Elect for the British Association of Spinal Surgeons.
